

Step 3: RF Control

Do you want to use RF control?

RF, or Radio Frequency, is another method of transmitting control signals. The benefit of RF is that the signal can travel through walls and cabinet doors to control equipment in another room or hidden inside a cabinet. It allows you to have a wall mounted TV for instance, without having your audio receiver, DVD player, and other audio/video equipment in plain sight. NevoC3 supports RF control via the Nevo REX-433 RF Extender (sold separately). Nevo REX-433 RF Extender receives the RF signals from NevoC3, converts them to IR and then retransmits that IR signal to your audio / video equipment. You don't even have to point the remote toward Nevo REX-433.

Three easy steps to personalize your NevoC3

Your home entertainment control interface can be customized based on the personal preferences you choose. It only takes a few easy steps to ensure that using your system will be simple and enjoyable for everyone in your home.

Step 1: Activities

Select an activity.

Step 2: Favorites & Personalization

Select your favorite channels.

Step 3: RF Control

Do you want to use RF control?

Step 1: Activities

An activity button sets up your entertainment system for a given activity with a single button press. For instance, a "Watch Movie" activity button may turn on your TV, audio receiver, DVD player, and select the proper inputs. It then jumps to a page where volume keys control the audio receiver and transport keys control the DVD player, all in a single button press.

Select your Activities from the list below:

- Watch TV
- Watch PVR
- Watch Movie
- Play Music
- Play Games
- Listen to Radio
- Listen to CD

Step 2: Favorites & Personalization

A favorite button is simply a button dedicated to selecting your favorite channels. It can display your choice of the channel logo or simple text. When you press the favorite button, it will send out the necessary information to change your tuner to that selected channel with a single button press. In addition, you can even group the favorite channels for each member of your family. This is called a profile. For instance, each member of your family can have their own favorites page as shown here for mom, dad, and kids.

Please indicate what channels you would like in your favorites list. If you want to group them into profiles, indicate which channel should go in each group.
